The good stuff

Grams + ml · original amounts

dark couverture chocolate finely chopped	175 g
unsalted butter	115 g
unsweetened cocoa powder	30 g
plain flour Type 405 or all-purpose	250 g
salt	½ tsp
eggs European size M	4
white granulated sugar	400 g
vanilla extract	1 tsp
buttermilk	60 ml

Let's make a mess.

20 × 30 cm baking frame or tin (or a 26 cm springform), baking paper, heatproof bowl over simmering water, sieve.

1. Heat things up.
Heat the oven to 180 °C conventional / 160 °C fan. Line a tray with baking paper and set a 20 × 30 cm frame on it (a 26 cm springform works too).
→ Oven fully preheated before the batter goes in.

2. Melt the magic.
Melt the chopped chocolate and butter over simmering water. Let it cool slightly. Mix cocoa, flour and salt and sift them together.
→ Glossy and smooth, warm but not hot.

3. Bring it together.
Beat eggs, sugar and vanilla to a cream. Stir in the chocolate butter, then the flour mix in three batches. Pour in the buttermilk slowly at the end.
→ Thick, shiny batter with no dry streaks.

4. Into the oven.
Spread the batter into the frame and bake for about 35 minutes.
→ Top set and crackly; a skewer comes out with moist crumbs.

5. The hard part: wait.
Let it cool completely. Chill for 2 more hours if you like a firmer bite, then cut into 5 × 5 cm squares. Keeps up to 3 days airtight.
→ Fully cold = clean cuts.

All amounts are the original recipe's grams and ml. Spoons: 1 tbsp = 15 ml · 1 tsp = 5 ml. No scale? Grab the cups version.

Chocolate cheat code.
175 g couverture = 1¾ bars of 100 g. Chop it finely so it melts evenly with the butter.
