Lemon & Berry Quark Bake

Half batch!

A Topfenauflauf for breakfast, dessert or both.

30–40 min at 160 °C | 2 portions, or 1 big one | ~20 min prep

The good stuff

Cups + spoons · Metric

The bake

mixed berries 200 g · frozen is fine	~1½ cups
organic lemon zest only	½
egg	1
salt	1 pinch
sugar 25 g · split in half	2 tbsp
Magerquark (low-fat quark) 250 g	1 heaped cup
durum wheat semolina (Grieß) 1½ EL	1½ tbsp
baking powder 1 TL	1 tsp
icing sugar	to dust

Let's make a mess.

Hand mixer, grater, two bowls, a small baking dish (~20 × 15 cm).

1. Berries + zest.
   Oven to 160 °C top/bottom heat. Pick over, wash and drain the berries (frozen: thaw, then drain). Zest the lemon.
   → Berries drained, not sitting in juice.

2. Whip the white.
   Separate the egg. Whip the white with a little salt and 1 tbsp sugar until stiff.
   → Stiff peaks.

3. Quark base.
   Stir quark, yolk, zest, Grieß, baking powder and the other 1 tbsp sugar well. Fold in the white.
   → Smooth and airy, no streaks.

4. Berry time.
   Spoon into the dish and gently fold in the berries.
   → Berries scattered, not mashed.

5. Bake.
   Bake 30–40 min.
   → Firm and lightly browned.

6. Dust + dig in.
   Dust with icing sugar and serve.
   → Warm and set in the middle.

Our tweaks.

Halved from REWE's 4 portions (1 egg instead of 2), streusel left off, smaller dish is our pick. Smaller dish may bake faster: check from 25 min.

No numbers.

REWE's 464 kcal per portion includes the streusel, so we don't print it. Cups are approximate.
