★ Recipe No. 05 ★

Topfen-schmarren

1 big plate!

Kaiserschmarrn's lighter, protein-packed cousin.

5 + 5 + 5 min in the pan | 1 big portion | 470 kcal · 48 g protein (source's estimate)

The good stuff

Cups + spoons · Metric

The batter

Magertopfen (low-fat quark) 250 g	1 heaped cup
sour cream 3 EL · optional	3 tbsp
spelt flour 50 g	scant ½ cup
eggs	2
sweetener	to taste
salt	1 pinch
grated lemon zest	to taste
water optional · if it's too stiff	a splash

Pan + plate

butter or coconut oil	a little
fruit or compote	to serve

Let's make a mess.

Non-stick pan with a lid, two bowls, whisk or hand mixer, spatula.

1. Yolks meet Topfen.
   Separate the eggs. Stir the Topfen with the 2 yolks (and the sour cream, if using) until well mixed.
   → Smooth and creamy.

2. Flavour it.
   Add flour, sweetener, lemon zest and salt. Stiff? A splash of water.
   → Thick but creamy.

3. Whip + fold.
   Beat the whites stiff and slowly fold them in.
   → Quite a firm batter: that's normal.

4. Low and slow.
   Melt the fat on MEDIUM heat. Spread the batter 0.5–1 cm thick. Fry ~5 min until it starts to set, flip, ~5 min more.
   → Golden at most, never dark.

5. Lid on, chill out.
   Heat off, lid on, let it sit 5 min.
   → Set all the way through.

6. Tear + top.
   Lid off, tear into pieces, pile on fruit or compote.
   → Fluffy, golden chunks.

Our tweaks.

None to the recipe: amounts and steps are Susanna's. Cups are our approximate conversions. She leaves sweetener, fat and zest to taste.

Mind the heat.

Her big warning: too hot and it burns and goes hard. Keep it on medium.

Recipe: Susanna Marie / susannamarie.at

Cup conversions: approx. (Topfen ~240 g/cup, flour ~120 g/cup)